

Indian Ocean Earthquake

Facts about the most devastating Indian Ocean Earthquake

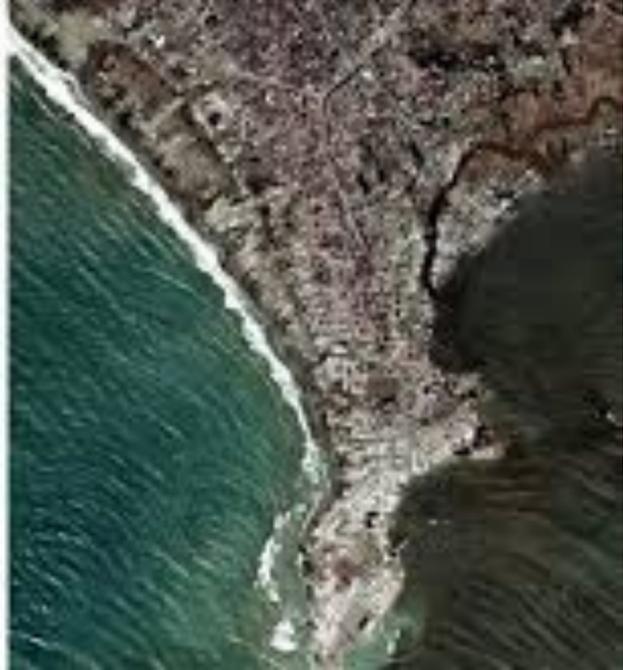

Indian Ocean Earthquake report

- On 2004 on Boxing Day Indian Ocean has had a dreadful day. Indian Ocean has had a Earthquake. It has caused an enormous loss to its people. This has led to 227,898 deaths. This earthquake has caused an tsunami reaching the height of 51 meters (167 feet) and flooding.

Before and afters

August 14, 2002 Thermal (Hawke), India December 24, 2004

Facts about Indian Ocean Earthquake

- This Earthquake has made over 1.7 million people homeless.
- Indian Ocean earthquake was one of the deadliest disasters of modern history killing 227,898 people.
- This has made an enormous difference to the Indian Ocean.

Key facts about Indian Ocean Earthquake

- Indian Ocean covers one fifth of the Earth.
- The Indian Ocean is the smallest but the most complex of the three major Oceans.
- The Indian Ocean was formed by the breakup of Gondwana
- The Indian Ocean stretches from Africa to Australia.
- The deepest point of the Indian Ocean is in Java, Indonesia.

More key facts

- It happened in 2004 on Boxing Day.
- It happened in Indian Ocean.
- 227,898 people died.

